++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mainly dry and bright this morning. Rain in west later.

Today:
One or two early showers in west, otherwise a bright day with, especially for the Lothians and Borders, some good spells of sunshine. Cloud increases this afternoon with outbreaks of rain reaching Dumfries and Galloway from mid-afternoon. Freshening southerly winds. Maximum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Tonight:
Cloudy with occasionally heavy rain clearing east this evening with showers following in west. East drier with long clear spells and a touch of frost, perhaps icy patches, developing. Minimum temperature -1 deg C (30 deg F).

Friday:
A chilly start to a bright day with, especially in east, long spells of sunshine, however the west sees rather more cloud and occasionally heavy showers. Northwesterly winds easing. Maximum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Bright start in east but rain spreading east Saturday morning, clearing later. Mainly dry with sunny spells Sunday and Monday, although some overnight rain expected. Windy at times, especially Monday.
